Kagoshima City: Gateway to Southern Japan

Kagoshima City, located in southern Japan, has long flourished as a center of exchange with Asia and the rest of the world.

Kagoshima boasts Kagoshima Chuo Station, the southern terminus of the bullet train that links the Japanese archipelago; Kagoshima Port and Marine Port Kagoshima, the latter of which can take in large cruise ships; and Kagoshima Airport, which offers international flights and is located a short way from Kagoshima City. With these facilities and more, Kagoshima City is equipped with the foundation to support exchange within Japan and with other countries.

Kagoshima City strives for sustainable urban development

■ Integrated diverse natural resources and urban functions

As the capital of Kagoshima Prefecture, Kagoshima City integrates high-level urban functions in areas such as government, commerce, education, culture, and medicine, forming an urban space in which diverse urban functions are well-balanced with bountiful nature.

Kagoshima City is also blessed with abundant nature. Spreading out right before your eyes in the heart of the city is the grand volcano Sakurajima and the calm waters of Kinko Bay, a view the likes of which exist almost nowhere else on earth. In addition to this unique view, you can enjoy a rich variety of fresh cuisine and hot springs in every part of the city.

We are striving for a sustainable city in which every resident can live mentally rich and healthy lives among the balanced integration of this diverse natural environment and these urban functions.
